EXPERIENCE

Sheila joined Clark & Gotzler with over 15 years of experience counselling private and public sector employers in employment law and human resources matters.

Ms. Conroy's prior experience representing employers includes private practice in Chicago and Milwaukee. She began practicing in Chicago at Wildman, Harrold, Allen & Dixon and continued at Franczek, Sullivan P.C, a boutique management-side labor and employment firm where she developed considerable litigation experience. Sheila later practiced at Friebert, Finerty & St. John, S.C. in Milwaukee.

While working in private practice, Sheila advised large and small businesses on a range of employment issues including interview and hiring processes, employment agreements and handbooks, employee performance monitoring and reviews, FMLA and other leave policies, drug and alcohol testing, sexual harassment complaints and investigations, and other EEO compliance issues. Sheila's practical approach has always focused on helping each client maintain a productive, positive work force by implementing effective employment policies and practices. Sheila also has experience litigating employment discrimination, wage and hour, and tort claims before courts and administrative agencies.

Sheila has applied her employment relations and human resources expertise in the public sector, as well. During her tenure as Director of the State of Wisconsin Office of State Employment Relations (OSER), she oversaw the implementation of human resources policies and programs for state employees, the development of affirmative action and EEO initiatives across state agencies, and the negotiation and administration of collective bargaining agreements with unions representing over 30,000 state employees.
